

Pennsylvania Elk

Elk in Pennsylvania? Yes, there really are elk in Pennsylvania as hard as it is to believe. Originally, there were native elk throughout the entire state. The last native elk was shot and killed in the 1880's.

Ralph Harrison is a local resident in the Pennsylvania elk range who has written three books about the elk, their population history, and the culture surrounding the elk of Pennsylvania. His books are highly informative and very good reads.

Links about the Pennsylvania Elk

Bob Shank Photography

Pennsylvania Wildlife Photographer (Willard Hill)